The book is divided into three sections. The first section, "Africanist Aesthetics and Social Justice," examines how Africanist aesthetics can be used to address issues of social justice, such as racism, sexism, and poverty. The second section, "Africanist Aesthetics and Equity in Education," explores how Africanist aesthetics can be used to create more equitable educational experiences for African students. The third section, "Africanist Aesthetics and Equity in the Arts," examines how Africanist aesthetics can be used to create more inclusive and representative arts and cultural institutions.

This book is a valuable resource for scholars, artists, and activists who are working to promote social justice and equity in the twenty-first century. It provides a comprehensive overview of the field of Africanist aesthetics, and it offers a nuanced and insightful analysis of the ways in which Africanist aesthetics can be used to challenge dominant narratives and create a more just and equitable world.
