Born in Hangzhou, China, in 1964, Ma grew up in a poor family. He was a bright student, but he struggled to find a good job after graduating from college. In 1995, he founded Alibaba, an online marketplace that connected Chinese businesses with buyers around the world.

Alibaba quickly became a success, and Ma soon became one of the richest people in China. But he was not content to rest on his laurels. He continued to invest in Alibaba, and he expanded the company's operations into new areas, such as cloud computing and artificial intelligence.

Today, Alibaba is one of the largest companies in the world, with a market capitalization of over $400 billion. Ma has stepped down as CEO, but he remains the company's chairman and spiritual leader.

Alibaba: The House That Jack Ma Built is a must-read for anyone who is interested in business, entrepreneurship, or China. The book is a fascinating and inspiring story of how one man's vision and hard work can change the world.
