Getting the Right Proportions

Once you have your ingredients, you need to get the right proportions. The perfect slime is about 60% glue and 40% water. If you use too much water, your slime will be too runny. If you use too little water, your slime will be too thick.

Mixing the Ingredients

Once you have the right proportions, it's time to mix the ingredients together. The best way to do this is to use a bowl and a spoon. Start by adding the glue to the bowl. Then, slowly add the water while stirring constantly. Once all of the water has been added, you can start adding the other ingredients. Be careful not to add too much glitter or essential oils, as this can make your slime too stiff or oily.

Kneading the Slime

Once the ingredients are mixed together, it's time to knead the slime. This will help to get rid of any lumps and make the slime more smooth and elastic. To knead the slime, simply take it out of the bowl and knead it with your hands. If the slime is too sticky, you can add a little more water. If the slime is too dry, you can add a little more glue.

Storing the Slime

Once the slime is made, you need to store it properly so that it doesn't dry out. The best way to store slime is in an airtight container. You can also store slime in the refrigerator for up to a week.
